Seminars

In our research seminars, external researchers from leading institutions present and discuss their ongoing or completed research projects in Economics and Business. These seminars are designed to foster intellectual exchange, encourage critical feedback, and promote collaboration among scholars. Students have the opportunity to meet and engage with top experts in their fields. In recent years, we have hosted guests from prestigious international institutions, including the European Central Bank, the University of Oxford, the University of Cambridge, Erasmus University Rotterdam, Toulouse School of Economics, Ca' Foscari University of Venice, Paris School of Economics, IFO Institute, Max Planck Institute for Innovation and Competition, among others.

Students must attend all general seminars organized by the Master in Economics, in addition to those scheduled within the courses in which they are enrolled.

The regularly updated list of seminars, including access to past seminars, is available at the following link: Seminars.
